Systems Level Change*

14. How is your organization addressing systems change as it relates to health equity and the population you serve?

Systems level change, as defined by the F4HE, is focused on addressing root causes of social issues, beyond direct service, by changing key factors that negatively impact the system and continue to perpetuate cycles of dysfunction and inequity. The Foundation is invested in systems level change that increases opportunities for everyone to live the healthiest life possible. To that end, the Foundation prioritizes supporting organizations addressing systemic health inequities through planning and implementation of the following three areas:

- Addresses policies, procedures, practices and/or cultures related to the system being challenged.
- Requesting insight and acting upon input from those affected by the system being challenged.
- Is meant to improve health outcomes for all who are affected by the system being challenged.

What we are looking for:

- All 3 elements of systems change noted above are addressed.
- The systems work is directly related to health and clients affected.
- The systems change work is embedded in the organization; it is part of the organization's DNA and is intentional.
- Systems change work is done on a regular or daily basis.
- The systems work is clear, defined, achievable and ongoing. There is noted success or progress in the systems change work being done.

*Please visit the grants page on our website (f4he.org) for systems change examples and additional information.
